INDEX.

Alford's Life, Journals, and Letters, 378.

Apostolic Church, 228; definition, 229; relation to the truth, 230; practical character, 231; objections, 232.

Arnold's Literature and Dogma, 377.

Baptist Hymn and Tune Book, 502.

Baptism, a Positive, Inflexible Law, 108; distinction between moral law and positive precepts, 108; baptism a positive law, 113; therefore obligatory, 114.

Baptists, Position of, in the History of American Culture, 1; Herder's claim upon scholars, 1; influence of religious sentiment upon public opinion, 3; practical theology of Baptists, 4; religious, social, and political influence of Baptist principles, 8; these principles essentially popular, 20.

Bible (Speaker's) Commentary, 255.

Bissell's Historic Origin of the Bible, 382.

Black Diamonds, 502.

Blackie's Four Phases of Morals, 126.

Body, Soul, and Spirit, 165; the Bible and science, 165; Scriptural psychology, 167; only two elements of being, matter and spirit, 167; meaning of Genesis ii. 7, 168; soul has no existence distinct from spirit, 172; effect of sin upon the body, 182; application of argument, 184.

Burr's Pater Mundi, 253.

Captain (A) of Industry, 149; life and labors of Mr. Thomas Brassey, 149; sources of his success, 150; lessons of his life, 164.

Calderwood's Moral Philosophy, 251.

Champlin's Intellectual Philosophy, 378.

Christian Union, True Grounds of, 293; question stated, 293; theories, 294; denominationalism, 296; Scriptural teaching as to ordinances and polity, 298; Christian union depends upon unity in Christ, 300; specific grounds of union—regeneration, 302; submission to Christ's authority, 304; correct church organization, 306.

Church History, A Chapter in, 24; state of Christianity in the second century, 24; literature of the century, 26; theology, 29; worship, 32; church government, 35; discipline, 39; heresies, 40; beginnings of change, 43.

Consciousness, Modern Theories of, 354; Francis Wayland, Noah Porter, Hamilton, 354; summary, 361.

Conybeare and Howson's St. Paul, 255.

Darwinism, 69; various development theories, 69; Darwinism and Scripture, 73; origin of life and of species, 78; descent of man, 204; chasm between man and lower animals, 207; objections to Darwinism, 209; summary of argument, 210; an hypothesis of evolution proposed, 218; scientists and theologians, 225; method of evolution unknown, 226.

Death-bed Repentance, 102; folly and danger of trusting it, 102; objections answered, 105; resulting appeal, 106.

Fisher's History of the Reformation, 245.

Forster's Life of Dickens, 247.

Free Trade and Protection, 407; political economy and practical science, 407; the maxims of protection answered, 408; protection not necessary to develop industry, 408; nor to secure ultimately low prices, 411; nor to develop national resources, 413; nor to guard national honor, 417.

Gladstone's Life of Faraday, 247.

Glasgow on the Apocalypse, 256.

Gross's Doctrine of the Lord's Supper, 252.

Hamilton's Autology, 251.

Hare's Memorials of a Quiet Life, 376.

Hebrews, Literature and Language of, 237; character of Hebrew mind, 237; deficient in scholastic elements, 238; Hebrew language fairly represents the Semitic family, 240; not exceptionally poor, 240; dialects, 242; analogy with the Aramæan, 244.

Hengstenberg's Kingdom of God, 254.

Hodge's Systematic Theology, 124.

Howell's Early Baptists of Virginia, 500.

John and the Three, 310; the apostle personally considered, 311; his relation to Peter, James, and Paul, 314; his last years, 320.

Johnson's Oriental Religions, 125.

Keil on Daniel, 121; on the Chronicles, 254; on the Kings, 503.

Knowlton's Foreign Missionary, 253.

Lange's Life of Christ, 121.

Leathes on the Structure of the Old Testament, 375.

Littlewood's Essentials of New Testament Study, 123.

Luthardt's Moral Truths of Christianity, 503.

McClintock and Strong's Cyclopædia, 123.
McClintock's Methodology, 252.
McDonald's Annihilation of the Wicked, 252.
Matthew's Gospel, Commentaries on, 379.
Matthew's Hints on Success in Life, 124.
Martin's Origin and History of the New Testament, 253.
Missionary Encyclopædia, 248.
Moll on the Psalms, 119.
Morrell's Texas and Honduras, 250.
Müller's Life of Trust, 498.
Murphy on Genesis, 256.

Narragansett Club, Publications of, 247.
Natural (The) and the Supernatural, 362; nature the province of the scientist, 363; the spiritual sphere, 365; relation of the natural and the supernatural, 367; applications of the argument, 371.

Palmer's Desert of the Exodus, 124.
Paradise, 88; Jewish notions of Messiah, 88; the penitent thief, 90; meaning and reference of word Paradise, 92; objections from science, 98; man's destiny, 100.
Paul as an Argument for Christianity, 486; state of the Christian argument, 486; three comprehensive questions, 487; Paul's place among the Christian evidences, 489; difficulties answered, 495; a fifth gospel, 497.
Peter (the Apostle) and his Relation to the Church of Rome, 323; extreme views, 323; New Testament statements, 324; meaning of "Thou art Peter," etc., 327; Peter's movements, 329; testimony of Peter's and Paul's epistles, 330; views of early post-apostolic writers, 335; views of modern writers, 359; review and summary, 352.
Pilgrims and Puritans, 129; were the Plymouth Pilgrims persecutors? 129; Separatists, 130; distinction between Pilgrims and Puritans, 131; Puritans and civil authority in religion, 135; their utterances on toleration and persecution, 136; views and utterances of Independents and Pilgrims, 144; John Robinson, 147; Plymouth Pilgrims intolerant, 274; Puritan treatment of Baptists, 277; treatment by the Pilgrims, 284; the two colonies and the Quakers, 286; summary, 291.
Political Responsibility of the Christian Citizen, 462; general grounds of responsibility, 462; considerations from our history, 463; our present position, 468; the hopes and possibilities of our future, 471; political obligations of Christian scholars, 474.
Prayer and Pastoral Efficiency, 432, Scriptural view of the relation, 432; practical influence, 439.
Prayer Test, 61; Prof. Tyndall's proposition, 61; nature of prayer, 61; physical law invariable, 63; the will free, 64; difficulties, 65; Scriptural examples, 67.

Renaud's Christ's Proofs of his Mission, 251.
Resurrection of Christ, 420; in what body, immortal or natural, was he raised? 420; immortal, 423; objections, 423; proofs, 426; illustrations of identity, 428; revelation our only authority here, 431.
Reuss's Theology in the Apostolic Age, 249.
Riggs on Emendation of Old Testament, 501.
Roget's Thesaurus of Words and Phrases, 501.
Row on the Moral Teaching of the New Testament, 122.

Saint Ambrose and his Time, 257; triumph of Christianity, 258; Ambrose, Bishop of Milan, 259; political paganism, 261; Ambrose and Symmachus, 262; Justina, 263; Augustine, 266; Theodosius, 266; works of Ambrose, 269; influence on church music, 265, 270; on ecclesiasticism, 272.
Savonarola, 383; his era and contemporaries, 383; he becomes a monk, 385; is called to the pulpit, 387; presence and power in Florence, 391; the Medici, 391; Savonarola in public affairs, 394; his perils, 397; imprisoned, 401; excommunicated and executed, 403; his character and teaching, 404.
Schools (Our) and Foreign Missions, 478; the church a missionary body, 478; present field of missionary labor, 480; demand for native agencies, 482; vital relation of home and schools to foreign missions, 484.
Skepticism and Scholarship, Relations of, 47; proper place of skepticism, 48; issue between skepticism and scholarship, 48; doubt paralyzes, 52; skepticism ends in disbelief, 53; fatal to scholarship, 57; faith necessary to intellectual and moral victory, 59.

Temptation of Christ, 187; the Scriptural authorities, 187; nature and import of the temptation, 192; sinlessness of Jesus, 197; relation of temptation to Christ's plan, 200.
Transfiguration of Christ, 449; the narrative in Mark, 449; place and time, 450; commentary, 452; teachings, 459.
Tulloch's Theology and Philosophy in England, 246.

Ulrici's Gott und Mensch, 380.

Whitney's Oriental and Linguistic Studies, 126.